Observe Women's History Month with the story of two local Green Bay women, Mary Cenefelt and Mollie Bertles. Both women, one an illiterate maid and the other a college-educated socialite, suffered physical violence and mental abuse at the hands of Dr. John R. Minahan, an influential member of a prominent Green Bay family.

Join us to hear how local author Lynda Drews, uncovered details of these stories from within the collections of UW-Green Bay's Archives Department, bringing to life the forgotten histories of these two women in her new book The Maid and the Socialite: The Brave Women Behind the Scandalous Minahan Trials.
